

www.mathernaa.org Excerpt (3), A. Jon Magoon University of Delaware Interview Transcript, 1979, Frances Eleanor Peacock papers, 1927-1937, Manuscript, Archives, and Rare Book Library, Emory University.

P- First, one has to be sincere, -- really wish to help the students; be willing to become one with them in their search to improve themselves – to become self-reliant. – But if a teacher has one little bit of prejudice, the youth will sense that instantly, an(d) it is most difficult ever to live it down. In fac(t), it is almost impossible to do so.

Too, if a teacher has a patronizing attitu(de) (such) as – “Oh, you poor children; I want to help you! (“) That is almost disastrous.